Abstract. Leading people is a task that requires skills and wisdom. This paper reviews the leadership of Jorge Mario Bergoglio. As the chief of the Catholic Church, Pope Francis must possess the skill set necessary to lead and manage his organization, The Catholic Church. This paper examines the leadership styles of Jorge Mario Bergoglio as a world class leader. The essay looks at the life experiences of this great man rising from Jorge Mario Bergoglio to Pope Francis, then discusses how pre-Francis impacted his holiness' leadership styles, and how he employs these different styles to share his vision and reach out to his followers.
