Will the stock market keep soaring? A simulation with maximum drawdowns

Chung Baek

Abstract

Our study analyzes the stock market risk using the maximum drawdown and discusses the possibility that the stock market will significantly decline in the near future based on the stochastic jump simulation. We find that a 10-20% maximum drawdown in the stock market is very likely to happen within the next few years and real earnings significantly affect the maximum drawdown.